BOOTH GIVES BOND

$1,250 Also Covers a New Charge Brought Here Yesterday.

J. N. Booth, formerly manager of the Columbia Guaranty Abstract Company, was released under a $1,250 bond yesterday and two cases in which he is charged with getting money under false pretenses were continued. In one case, filed some time ago, Booth was charged with having obtained $1,000 on a sight draft drawn on an Oklahoma concern which could not be found.

Another charge was placed against him yesterday by Ira T. G. Stone of the Central Bank, who alleges Booth unlawfully got money by means of a bogus sight draft. The particulars are the same as in the first charge, except that only $250 is involved. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Justice Kurtz yesterday and the justice fixed his bond at $500. Judge David H. Harris considered the case and fixed Booth's bond for both at $1,250. The bondsmen are: J. N. Belcher, F. W. Poor, H. H. Tandy, F. H. Hoberrecht, H. S. Booth and E. G. Davis.

The suit of Andrew J. Valentine against Russell E. Holloway to set aside a deed was taken under advisement by Judge Harris. The court also took the case of Lura Belle James against Robert E. Quisenberry, a suit to try title to about two acres of Boone County land, under advisement. The two-million-dollar case of the state against the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad for alleged overcharges in freight and passenger rates, which was begun by Attorney General John T. Barker, was continued by consent.

The case of Ollie Barnes against James A. Houchins for alleged damages was continued. The plaintiff's claim was found to be $3,471.35 in a suit to foreclose mortgage. The John A. Stewart Real Estate and Investment Company against The Kenmore Construction Company and others. This claim was declared a first lien upon the property in dispute and judgment enforcing the lien was given.

BANDIT ATTACKS DR. PAQUIN

Former Columbia Druggist Injured in St. Louis.

Dr. Ozias Paquin, a former student of the University of Missouri and formerly a Columbia druggist, was attacked by a bandit in his office on the eighth floor of the Victoria Building in St. Louis Friday night and robbed of $26.

The bandit entered Doctor Paquin's office under the guise of a patient and struck him with a loaded rubber hose. Doctor Paquin was found two hours later by a scrub woman. His injury is not considered serious.

Doctor Paquin was a brother of Doctor Paul Paquin, a former professor in the School of Medicine of the University. He was a member of the drug firm of Peck and Paquin for several years. He left Columbia about twenty years ago. Paquin street is named after his brother Paul, who opened the street.
